

PLAN FOR REFORESTATION.

The Journal yesterday received an interesting report from the new Bureau of Forestry. What was formerly three Divisions is now an established Bureau, with an increased appropriation for carrying on the work, and which will render possible both an improved office organization and extension of the field of operations. In this connection we notice that after a Cabinet meeting at Washington a short time ago, Secretary Hitchcock made public the fact that he is preparing to carry out an extensive system of reforestation through the Bureau above mentioned, in the Interior department, some of the plans successfully pursued in Germany. The President and the Secretary's colleagues were satisfied with the practicability of the scheme, and impressed with the results which could be achieved in restoring the rapidly disappearing woodlands of the country.

This new movement should appeal to people interested in forestry matters in Nevada, and the organization of a Society for Protection of Forests will undoubtedly prove a valuable auxiliary to Secretary Hitchcock, and insure greatly to the benefit of the interest in the State. Some means must certainly be devised to renew our timber lands or the scarcity of that material will be keenly felt by our people before the lapse of many years. In fact it is sensibly felt at the present time, as lumber of all kinds has to be procured from distant points with a corresponding increase of time, labor and price. Nearly all of our heavily timbered lands have been exhausted, as have those immediately contiguous to our western boundary. It will be many years before the second growth will furnish material for milling purposes or anything else except perhaps a small quantity of fuel. Even when the second growth shall arrive at its maturity its product will not amount to one half of what the first, and will prove wholly inadequate to the general need. If the work of reforestation is to be left to nature a worse timber famine will prevail in Nevada than was ever experienced in any of our States or Territories. There is no State in which greater interest should be manifested in forestry, nor one whose soil is more applicable for all from the new bureau. We would call the attention of our State officials to this matter, with the suggestion of prompt and practical action.

IN ANOTHER ASPECT.

President McKinley's position is that the Philippines are ours and cannot be given up. If they stood in relation to the nation as do the States, as was the contention of the minority of the Supreme Court, they that contention would hold, for the question was finally settled years ago, "Once in the Union, always in the Union," they could not secede however much they desired to do so, and if the Court had decided that the Constitution applied to the recently acquired territory, as to the States that have been admitted to the original Union, that contention would be manifest. They would necessarily remain under our sovereignty because a part of it unless taken away by conquest. That has been the fundamental principle of this government and sustains it, although it requires a civil war to do it, up to the late decision of the Supreme Court.

But in making that this insular territory is not an integral part of the Union, and cannot be until admitted as States, the Court decides that they are entirely in the hands of Congress. It is not the President, may apply such tariff regulations as it sees proper. It can classify them as territories or admit them as States. Its power is unlimited, and carries with it the right to control and dispose of the island.

If in choosing the next Congress the people elect a majority who believe in a wise policy not to hold the Philippines longer, they can name the terms of disposal. They can give them to the Filipinos, granting the independence which they have so persistently striven for, and the action will be valid. The President cannot control these islands except as he can control Congress. Undoubtedly he will make haste to have legislation enacted at the next session of Congress that will give him the greatest amount of power, and as the majority are clearly submissive to his domination, it is pretty certain to be done. But things may be different a couple of years later.

But the majority decision is clearly against the declaration of the President that the islands cannot be given up, for Congress can do anything with them that it chooses—even to the delivery of them back to Spain or presenting them as a gift to England, France or Russia.

AWAY OFF.

The Carson Appeal is away off in some of its comments and inferences relating to the proceedings of the late Democratic State Convention in Ohio. We can discern no indications that the Democrats of Ohio have departed from the principles of their party for a mess of local potage. They simply refrained from formulating a National platform three years in advance of the time and were silent upon some issues that were not pertinent to a local campaign so long preceding a presidential year. We have not seen a full copy of the platform adopted but from a synopsis of the proceedings which came to our notice there was no repudiation of any principle of the party or any man or set of men that is now or ever has been connected with it. We, moreover, cannot conceive how the course of the convention can "damage the National organization." On the contrary, it will promote the success of the party locally if it cannot fail to affect beneficially the general cause, as success in President McKinley's own State would certainly give courage to Democrats everywhere and inspire them with hope for the future, which would increase their zeal in similar contests in their own States, and also stimulate them to more vigorous efforts in the battle of 1904.

While it is true that the trusts have no political principles beyond their own interests, the idea that they propose a change of front, or rather of party, is too absurd for serious discussion. To illustrate upon a small scale, it would be like a liquor dealers' association giving its support to the Prohibition candidates and platform. The trusts will never attempt the more than Republican task of "reframing" the Democratic party in that respect, neither will they desert the Republican party, which is their creator, protector and only reliable friend, and whose success depends on their continued existence, as it was the author of their being.

We surmise that the Appeal has discovered a more's nest destitute of eggs, and furthermore that when it realizes the groundlessness of its fears will admit that the Democrats of Ohio pursued a wise and politic course and when the election is over will rejoice with the Journal over the downfall of McKinleyism in the Buckeye State.

HARD LINES.

The Journal learns that further developments in the Tinsion post-office case, in the opinion of Inspector Foyne, warrant the release of ex-Postmaster Snyder, who is now in jail at Elko. The Inspector has probably received further information from Washington which clears away the small shortage which was supposed to exist after the $2500 mistake in the "particulars" account had been rectified. It is likely that smaller mistakes have since been discovered which show that Mr. Snyder is not debtor to the government in any amount whatever. As the Journal explained a few days ago, the blame rests with the department at Washington, where the blunder was committed, and not with Inspector Foyne. But an innocent man has suffered imprisonment just the same, with probably no recourse against the government at or anybody for the injustice done him. It is hard lines, but the victim will have to bear it while probably the official blunderer who caused it is misfortune has sufficient "pull" to enable him to retain his position and continue his career of incompetence despite of Civil Service or any other law, human or Divine.

Let us—since the above was in type, District Attorney Stannard has received a dispatch stating that upon a full investigation at the Department, it is shown that the government is indebted to Snyder in the sum of $29.

It is amusing to note the earnestness of some of the newspapers when did all they could to elect McKinley, and to strengthen the grip of monopoly on the people, in now supporting the Babcock scheme for reducing or abolishing the duties upon all imports competing with the trust products. The time to have fought monopoly with success was before it became all powerful. However, better late than never, and we can only hope that the flood of "McKinley prosperity" has not become too strong to be successfully resisted, and that the late comers may be in time to help to resist it.

The Salt Lake Tribune suggests that a good method of stopping lynching would be a law making the county where they occur responsible in heavy damages. This would undoubtedly cause taxpayers to oppose, rather than encourage lynching affairs, rather than anything else.

The Democrats need a candidate with strong convictions and the Republicans need one with no convictions at all. Someone like President McKinley would do, remarks an irreverent exchange.

The Supreme Court decides that the Constitution does not follow the flag. The opinion manifestly decides that the Supreme Court follows neither the Constitution or the flag.

ABOUT THE SMELTERS

Plenty of Schemes Are Working in Ore Reduction Circles.

There is something doing in ore reduction circles in this city. Several weeks ago the plant of the Reno Smelting and Milling Company was sold to the Empire Copper Mining and Milling Company. Representatives of the new owners are here. They say that they will put the smelter into commission on custom ores. It is also planned to work the Pyramid ores at this plant. These mines are also the property of the Empire Company.

The Reno Reduction Works has been put in epic and span condition and is ready to begin operations on an hour's notice.

It is still owned by the Electric Mining and Reduction Company, but rumors are heard that a deal is likely to be soon made. It is learned that Chas. Williams, Jr., who spent some time in Reno a year or two ago, has acquired a much larger interest in the concern.

It matters little who owns these two plants, just so they resume operations without delay. It seems strange that Reno should be an ore shipping point to the extent that it has become when there are such splendid opportunities for ore reduction here. Many fine looking prospects in this vicinity would speedily become valuable producers if the ore could be worked here.

In addition to these two plants there is a possibility that the new company operating on Pearline will erect a reduction works.

About This Industry.

A second test run of Con. Virginia ore is being made at the Kinkead mill in Virginia City.

Messrs. McCone and Woodbury have purchased 2000 tons of Con. Virginia tailings, which have been delivered at the Eureka mill on the Carson river.

A shipment of placer gold was made by George Thorpe on Wednesday from his placer claim, the Gold Dollar, in Mazowka canyon. There were 13 1-2 ounces, worth $242.62.—Inyo Independent.

William McQueen, who worked in the mines in Virginia City in the early days and was prominent in mining circles throughout the West, died in the insane asylum at Provo, Utah, a few days ago.

L. H. Rodgers, who is one of the parties interested in the Cuyahoga Mining Company, which is doing business in Smith Valley, was in Yerington the first of the week. His company is about to establish a pneumatic cyanide plant at the Cuyahoga mill to work the tailings that come from the mill.

Superintendent Leonard of the Comstock Tunnel Company, said yesterday that the mill near the mouth of the Sutro tunnel is crushing a daily average of six tons to the stamp of material from the tunnel waste dump. The mill has ten stamps and 20-mesh screens are used on the batteries. The mill is equipped with four concentrators each having a width of six feet. Mr. Leonard says the waste ore is paying well and there is a vast quantity of it.—Virginia Chronicle.

George Wright, a well known resident of De Lamar, expressed the opinion that the time was not far distant when the De Lamar mine and mill would close down for good. No new lusters or other mine supplies are going in, and the mill, he declares, has seen its best days. The secret of the whole business, Mr. Wright believes, lies in the alleged fact that the vein in the property is nothing more than a breakever from the big ledge in the April Fool, and that it has been pretty nearly mined out.—Salt Lake Herald.

THE COAL FIELD OF NEVADA

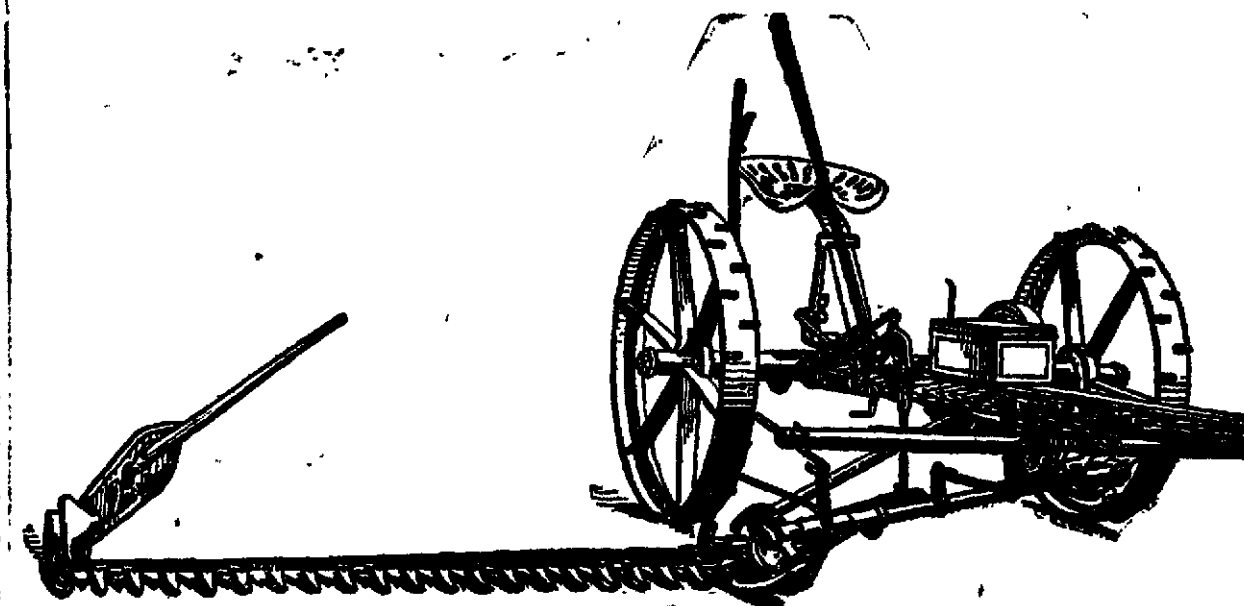

News from the oil fields is very scarce, says the Independent. Since the collapse of the Elko company no work has been done anywhere in the oil belt except that necessary to hold the locations. New locations are being done to move the existence of oil. As far as that problem is concerned it is no nearer a solution than it was ten years ago.

In the coal mine work is proceeding vigorously and good results are being obtained. The coal continues to improve in quality as depth is reached. If the same ratio of improvement continues the next 100 feet, as is shown from the surface to the present workings, an excellent quality of marketable coal will surely be uncovered.

If the oil men had shown some of the pluck and energy that has characterized the coal company, there might be a spark in the Elko oil belt.

The last school census shows 1922 children of school age in Elko county, a gain of fifty-seven over last year.

THE STREETS OF RENO ARE SOON TO BE PAVED

Important Action Taken Yesterday By the Town Board--Other Improve- ments to Follow.

Reno is to have paved streets and that in the very near future. The Board of County Commissioners yesterday, sitting as a Town Board, passed an order to advertise for bids to lay asphaltum paving on Commercial Row from Sierra to Center streets.

Bids for the performance of this work are to be advertised for in the Journal.

Considerable interest was displayed yesterday in the Board rooms when the matter came up. A large number of the property owners affected were present. They were there to advocate the paving of the street, some came there to protest and the balance of the audience was made up of the idly curious.

It appearing to the Board that the owners of a greater portion of the property fronting on the street favored paving, the order above mentioned was made by a unanimous vote of the Board.

Plans and specifications had been adopted by the Board and the paving of Commercial Row is to be done according to class "a" of the specifications.

It provides for the leveling of the street to conform with the established grade.

The requirements are that six inches of cemented macadam be first laid, covered with asphaltum binder an inch thick and topped off with two inches of asphaltum wearing surface.

There are also petitions on file for paving Virginia street from Commercial Row to the Iron Bridge and on Second street from Virginia street to Sierra.

It is the plan of the Board to get work on Commercial Row well under way before contracting to have the other streets paved.

Half the cost of paving Commercial Row will be borne by the Railroad Company. The company will also pave its crossings.

The Reno Water, Land and Light Company will put its mains in good condition before the bituminizing begins, in order that the street will not be disturbed in the near future.

The chief opposition to paving the streets is on account of the first cost. But after the work is completed and paid for, the enhancement of value of properties fronting on these streets, it is believed, will more than repay the cost of the work. In addition there will be the advantages of cleanliness and noiseless traffic.

Undoubtedly basalt gutters and cement sidewalks will follow in the train of bituminized streets. Verily Reno is now marching in the vanguard of municipal progress.

ANOTHER BIG BLAZE YESTERDAY

Loss of Three Thousand and Dollars.

RENO MACCARONI FACTORY

A Total Loss--Department Pre- vents the Fire From Spreading.

The old saying, "Three small blazes and then a big fire," was verified yesterday in all particulars except as to the number of preliminary blazes.

For a week or two past the alarms have been turned in with monotonous frequency. The newly equipped department has earned many nice eulogies that have been pronounced upon them for the quickness with which they have responded and the ready manner in which they subjugated the fires.

Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock an alarm was turned in from box 42. The Reno Macaroni factory on Pearl street was aflame from garret to cellar. Two lines of hose were laid and water turned on but not in time to save the building, which, together with contents, is a total loss.

The Dornio residence was in imminent danger, but was saved.

Owing to delay in turning in the alarm before the arrival of the department the flames had communicated themselves to the wood yard of the Nevada-California-Oregon railroad.

There are several thousand cords of pine wood piled up there and if the fire had not been conquered at its beginning, the car shops would have been swept away and the Reno Mill Company's lumber yard would also have burned.

The Macaroni factory was just completed and stocked. It was owned by A. T. Dornio, who recently purchased it from F. Marra and housed the machinery in a new building.

Mr. Dornio's loss will not be less than $3000. He was insured three days ago by the Bank of Nevada in the Sun Company for $1500. The fire is believed to have originated from the boiler room. No one was in the factory at the time.

THE SCHEME MAY BE A GO

Plan to Bring Eastern Relay Ri- ders Here May Be All Right.

The proposition to bring the best relay team in the United States here during fair week to ride against the Reno Wheelmen was conceived in the spirit of a joke and was so considered for some time, but, after thinking the matter over seriously, the promoters have become convinced that it is a very sensible project after all.

Should the Reno riders be defeated they would lose none of their laurels, in fact if they should be defeated by a small margin, it would be a practical victory, for the All-American team would be picked from the cream of the eastern riding talent.

However, it is not a sure thing that our boys will be beaten. The easterners will scarcely deem the foe man worthy of their steel. They will make no effort to train for the event and will be further handicapped by the light air of Reno.

This event would attract the greatest crowd that ever visited the State fair. The whole city would attend and excursions would bring many hundreds from Carson and Virginia, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Jose and other California cities would send delegations.

The Wheelmen will shortly send a committee to confer with the State fair directors relative to the project.

ACTIVITY IN BUILDING

Near Sixth and West streets, within a radius of 200 yards there are seven buildings in course of construction. One is a large modern store building, another is the brick kindergarten building and the balance are residences. Similar activity prevails in other quarters of the city.

The residences being built in Reno this year will provide accommodations for an increase of several hundred in population. And still the "For Rent" sign is conspicuous by its absence. Reno may not be booming, but it has, nevertheless, strong symptoms of that dread disease.

A RENOITE'S IMPRESSIONS OF BUFFALO EXPOSITION

A Journal Correspondent Describes the Sights and Sounds of the Pan- American Fair.

The general plan of the grounds of the Buffalo Exposition is very easy to recall. In the center are the main buildings grouped around the Electric Tower. At the right of the Lincoln Park gateway are the buildings of the different States and nations.

There you can take a trip from Honduras to Maine, from Ohio to Porto Rico, from Chile to Michigan.

The New England and Michigan buildings, provide pleasing contrasts, all the departments of the New England building being furnished in the massive, elegant style of a century ago, with the spirit in its place in the corner and the spinning wheel by the fireside, while every piece of Michigan's furnishing looked as though it had just come from the manufacturers.

Just beyond the government buildings is a reproduction of the Indian Mound of Ohio. There are several models of these mounds to be found in the Liberal Arts building. Here is also an Indian stockade and several homes of the tribes of New York State Indians and their relics seem very much in evidence at the Exposition.

But to return to the plan of the grounds. The Government buildings are on the right of Lincoln Park gateway, the main entrance. Diagonally across, through the triumphal arch, is the Midway. Here again for comfort tuck some cotton in your ears. Close beside you shriek the hawk for the great giant, another sends the air with his stentorian invitation to visit the upside down house.

The scenic railway, the streets of Cairo, the trained animals, the gypsy fortune tellers, all have their praises sounded so vociferously that the air is filled with tumult.

You wander in to see Kilnsea send up its constant fires you pass through Darkest Africa; you visit your neighbors, the Hawaiians, in their native village, you visit the California ostrich farm—a most instructive and entertaining place. On and on you go. It seems that things of interest will never cease.

There is so much to be seen you know not when to stop. As you emerge from the Midway the Lowrey Chocolate building—temple, one would almost say—is seen and against it the Walter H. Baker cocoa building ornamented with the time honored, world-famous picture of the waitress bearing in her hands the two cups. A counter-part in flesh and blood is on the grounds to serve cocoa—for five cents.

But you have stayed late, and as you come out from the Midway you see across the grounds the bright rim of gold around the Ohio building. Illinois catches the glow, it spreads to other buildings and soon bursts into a brilliant blaze. Niagara, ten miles away, is sending to us her message of light.

Now it is that the grounds are in their full beauty, every building, studded with incandescents, gleams like a brooch magnified a hundred thousand times. It is glorious, magnificent.

You suddenly turn around the Building of Mines and the Electric Tower is in full view. Beautiful by daylight, it is marvelous by night. It lifts its slender form, sparkling with its pearl and diamond incandescents, with dignified grandeur against the dark blue of the sky.

To its base the marvelous fountain has changed to a glorious rainbow, while with the spray tossing as ribbons of everchanging color you sit and gaze and you never weary. It is perfect.

From the left a long ray of clear white light flashes across the sky. An answering ray leaps from the tower and meets it, the two mingling and blending in white radiance.

The grounds close at 11 and reluctantly you tear yourself away. Outside the grounds a pleasant surprise awaits you. From the encircling laguna flashes up fountains of the colors of the rainbow. They gleam for a moment, then die down only to flash up again. You go home to dream dreams, compared with which Aladdin and his wonderful lamp are as nothing.

KNOCKERS STILL PLY THEIR TRADE

The company that put the $40,000 bond on the claims owned by the Nevada Exploration and Development Company has been for some time seriously considering the proposition of erecting a smelter.

A Renoite, who enjoys a good competency from landed investments, approached the manager of the company the other day and advised him not to build the smelter because he could never obtain enough to make it profitable.

Knockers of this sort are to blame for Reno's long period of inactivity and lack of enterprise.

OUTLOOK FOR WATER SUPPLY

Gradually the Truckee is falling and slime begins to gather on the rocks in the river bed. The snow has nearly all disappeared from the eastern slope of the mountains, only a few isolated patches are visible near the summit.

But as yet no anxiety is felt by farmers depending upon the water of this stream for irrigation. The supply is still copious. Ditches are all running bank full.

Reports from the eastern part of the State are to the effect that the Humboldt is rapidly drying up. The Carson and Walker rivers are still flowing a good volume of water.

White Wax.

The white wax exported from China is made by the curious method of using insects in its production. These insects are found in brown pea shaped excrescences or galls attached to an evergreen tree called the "insect tree." The galls are gathered in May and carried in headlong flight to the market towns by bearers, who travel at night so that the heat may not force the insects to emerge during the journey.

They are then placed on the "wax tree," which is a stump varying from 8 to 12 feet in height, with numerous branches rising from the top, similar to the pollard willow.

The wax insects are made into small packets of 20 or 30 galls, which are enclosed in a leaf of the wood of tree, fastened together with rice straw. These packets are suspended close to the branches under which they hang. On emerging from the galls the insects creep rapidly up the branches, to which they attach themselves and begin forming a coating of wax that in about three months attains a thickness of almost a quarter of an inch.

The branches are then cut off, and after removing as much of the wax as possible by hand they are put in a kettle of hot water, when the remaining wax floats on the surface and the insects finish their term of usefulness by going to the bottom.

Formation of Dew.

Ground a little below the surface is always warmer than the air above it. So long as the surface of the ground is above the dew point vapor must rise and pass from the earth into the air.

The moist air so formed will mingle with the air above it, and its moisture will be condensed, forming dew wherever it comes in contact with a surface cooled below the dew point. In fact, dew rises from the ground.

But how is the dew formed on bodies high up in the air?

Dew does not rise in particles, as it was once considered to fall in particles like fine rain. It rises in vapor. Some is caught by what is on the surface of the earth, but the rest ascends in vapor form until it comes in contact with a much colder surface to condense it into moisture.

The vapor does now flow upward in a uniform stream, but is mixed in the air by eddies and wind currents and carried to bodies far from where it rose. In fact, dew may be deposited, even though the country for many miles all around be dry and incapable of yielding any vapor. In such cases the supply of vapor to form that dew would depend on the evaporation of the dew and on what was wafted over by the winds.

When Mrs. Gilbert Lost Her Spectacles.

The only time I resented newspaper chatter was when I had my spectacles stolen. They were snatched from my belt, the case I wore there being torn away. I spoke of it to Mr. Dorney, and the story went round the theater. Somehow the reporters got hold of it, and they made a great deal about it. It was really too bad of them. I felt it the more because I had managed to keep a much more serious theft an absolute secret. That was at the time when so much fun was being made of the "robbery of jewels" form of the theatrical advertisement. I had a very valuable pair of earrings taken from my pocket most cleverly, and I was on my way to play for a charity tool. However, I kept my loss quite to myself. And then to be brought before a sympathetic public as the loser of a pair of spectacles! From "The Stage Reminiscences of Mrs. Gilbert" in Scribner's.

An Interesting Link.

One curious incident in the siege of Badajos may be related. The day after the assault two Spanish ladies, the younger a beautiful girl of 14, appealed for help to two officers of the rifles, who were passing through one of the streets of the town. Their dresses were torn, their ears, from which rings and beads were roughly snatched, were bleeding, and to escape outrage or death they cast themselves on the protection of the first British officers they met. One of the officers was Captain Harry Smith of the rifles. Two years later he married the girl he had saved in a scene so wild. Captain Harry Smith, an after years served at the Cape as Sir Harry, and this Spanish girl, as Lady Smith, gave her name to the historic town which Sir George White defended with such stubborn valor, "Wellington's Men."

They Were Attentive.

A clergyman preaching in a country church for the first time was delighted to find the congregation very attentive and told the vergor so after the service.

"The vergor replied, 'For' bless you, sir, we was all looking for you to disappear!'

"Why, what do you mean?" said the clergyman.

"Well, sir, you see, the pulpit is rotten and hasn't been preached in this ten year or more,"-Pearson's Weekly.

Some Odd Mistakes.

An urban chemist advertised in his shop window: "Artificial eyes. Open all night." Away down south in front of the postoffice in an inland town may have been seen this legend, "Post here letters too late for the next mail." In a picture of the departure of the pilgrims from Delftmen the artist placed a large steamer in the distance leaving the harbor under full steam.
